Thanks. I'll harass Kate if that needs doing. ☺

Inevitable with this many authors, I guess. Pretty easy to fix with search/replace at least.

Another thing: I just learned about the "cross reference" function in Word. Can use it to make auto-updating references to the numbered paragraphs, which there are a bunch of here. Maybe it's too late for this to help much but it could avoid some errors if there are any further changes to the order or numbering.

Hi Valois – Something I'm noticing is that the use of CFR versus C.F.R., and the use of the section symbol with either one and a specific section or subsection number, is inconsistent throughout the document. Any choice is fine with me as long as we're consistent.

Here is the link to the new version of the Dewey-Burdock RTC for final review.

The link to version 2 still works if you need to access that document. That version is up to date through November 12 at 8:00 pm.

Please note: we will be working with this new version from this moment forward.
Thanks!
